'Why Is My Cow Glowing?'

A new report details the bizarre ways in which Brits have lost or destroyed their mobile phones, the Telegraph reported Wednesday. Insurance claims made by owners show one farmer said he damaged his iPhone by trying to use it as a light while delivering a calf and losing it into the rear of a cow accidentally. Another claim says a woman baked her Nokia 6303i into a cake. (EXPRESS)

A 'Frankenstorm' in the Making

Hurricane could mix with wintry storm to pound East Coast

Washington

All the spare parts appear to be coming together to create what forecasters are calling "Frankenstorm," a monster combination of high wind, heavy rain, extreme tides and maybe snow that could cause havoc along the East Coast just before Halloween next week.

Hurricane Sandy, having blown through Haiti and Cuba on Thursday, continues to barrel north. A wintry storm is chugging across from the West. And frigid air is streaming south from Canada.

And if they meet Tuesday morning around New York or New Jersey, as forecasters predict, they could create a big wet mess that settles over the nation's most heavily populated corridor and reaches as far inland as Ohio.

With experts expecting at least $1 billion in damage, the people who will have to clean it up aren't waiting.

A man walks amid the ruins of a home destroyed by Hurricane Sandy in Cuba.

Preparing for the Storm

Government forecasters said there is a 90 percent chance — up from 60 percent two days earlier — that the East will get pounded starting Sunday and stretching past Halloween on Wednesday. Maryland utility companies and emergency management officials say they're preparing for large-scale power outages, flooding and other damage. Pepco spokeswoman Myra Oppel says the power company is in touch with other utilities about the possibility of bringing in out-of-state crews to restore power. Dominion Power has already had conversations with other companies about sending workers to whatever areas are hit hardest by the storm, said Le-Ha Anderson, a Dominion spokeswoman. (AP)

Less-Invasive Scanners: After two years, the Transportation Security Administration is quietly removing full-body X-ray scanners from seven major airports and replacing them with a different type of machine that produces a cartoon-like outline, the Associated Press reported Thursday. The TSA says it is making the switch in technology to speed up lines at crowded airports. The older machines will be moved to smaller airports. (AP)

Election Most Polarized Since '88

Poll finds widening divide among voters along racial lines

Washington

The 2012 election is shaping up to be more polarized along racial lines than any presidential contest since 1988, with President Barack Obama lagging behind Republican Mitt Romney among white voters by 21 percentage points, a steep drop in support from four years ago.

As he did in 2008, Obama gets overwhelming support from nonwhites, who made up a record high proportion of the overall electorate four years ago. In that contest, 80 percent of all nonwhites supported Obama, including 95 percent of black voters, according to the exit poll. In The Washington Post-ABC News national tracking poll released Wednesday, Obama wins

Meanwhile ...

Former Secretary of State Colin Powell, a longtime Republican, is sticking with President Barack Obama in this year's election. He told CBS' "This Morning" that he respects fellow Republican Mitt Romney but thinks he's been vague on many issues. Powell said the president got the United States out of Iraq, has laid out a plan for leaving Afghanistan "and didn't get us into any new wars." (AP)

79 percent of nonwhites, and support for his re-election is nearly universal among African-Americans.

But among whites, Obama is currently doing much worse than he did in 2008. At this stage four years ago, Obama trailed Republican John McCain by eight percentage points among white voters. Even in victory, Obama ended up losing white voters by 12 percentage points.

Obama's current 21 percent deficit — he trails Romney 59 to 38 percent — would be far harder to overcome, as this year may break a string of increasingly nonwhite electorates. In 2008, whites made up a record-low 74 percent of all voters; in the latest Post-ABC poll, they made up a similar 75 percent of likely 2012 voters.

In 2004, John Kerry lost white voters to George W. Bush by a similarly wide margin, 58 to 41 percent — and he also lost the election. SCOTT CLEMENT AND JON COHEN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Syrian Regime Backs Cease-Fire

4-day truce remains unlikely to take hold as battles continue

Beirut

The embattled regime of Syrian President Bashar Assad promised Thursday to observe a U.N.-proposed truce during a four-day Muslim holiday, while rebels claimed major gains in the key battleground of Aleppo.

But prospects of the cease-fire taking hold are dim, given Assad's history of broken promises and the rebel momentum in Aleppo, Syria's largest city, where fighters said they advanced into several regime-held neighborhoods.

The truce plan by U.N.-Arab League envoy Lakhdar Brahimi has been endorsed by the U.N. Security Council, including Assad allies Russia and China. U.N. chief Ban Ki-moon urged all countries and groups with influence in Syria to pressure both sides to stop the violence in the civil war, his spokesman said.

The holiday cease-fire was the least a divided international community could agree on after the failure of a more ambitious plan for an open-ended truce and political transition talks by Brahimi's predecessor, Kofi Annan, in April.

Even the current truce, to begin Friday with the start of the Eid al-Adha holiday, appears in jeopardy from the outset. Neither side has shown an interest in laying down arms, instead pushing for incremental military gains.

The truce plan remained vague Thursday evening. It wasn't clear when exactly it was supposed to begin, and there were no arrangements for monitoring compliance. Brahimi never said what would happen after four days, a potentially dangerous omission considering that Assad and those trying to topple him sharply disagree on a way forward. Assad refuses to resign while the opposition says his departure is a prerequisite for talks.

"It's a long shot," Beirut-based analyst Paul Salem said of the cease-fire.

300 Accusers Emerge in BBC Sex Scandal

London

Disgraced BBC entertainer Jimmy Savile was investigated in the 1980s over an allegation of indecent assault, police said Thursday as they announced that 300 potential victims had come forward so far with abuse accusations against the late TV host.

The twin announcements showed how a sex abuse scandal that is engulfing one of Britain's most venerable news organizations was showing no signs of abating.

The once-popular children's television and radio presenter, who died last October at 84, is accused of coercing teens into having sex with him in his car, in his camper van and even in dressing rooms on BBC premises. (AP)

Marine Corps Marathon Survival Guide

Pace Yourself

In some ways, participants in the Marine Corps Marathon have it the easiest of anybody on Sunday morning: They don't need to put much thought into what they're doing and where they're going (follow the pack, place one foot in front of the other, repeat for 26.2 miles). Everybody else has the hard job. Those without any investment or interest in "the people's marathon" must go out of their way to avoid the blocked streets and clogged Metro stations that are a given with 30,000 marathoners and more than 100,000 spectators in town. Meanwhile, friends and family of runners need to bring their A-game when it comes to endlessly cheering variations of "You can do it!" Whatever your role this weekend, we've got some survival tips for you. KATIE ABERBACH (EXPRESS)

Here are itineraries we'd follow, depending on mood and energy level. All assume you're on two feet and not too slow ... and that your runner isn't in first place.

Metro-Free

You want to avoid packed trains and equally crowded stations.

Skip the first 10 miles and grab a roadside spot behind the Lincoln Memorial, where you'll see runners as they approach Mile 11. Next, walk to the corner of 23rd St. SW and Ohio Drive SW; runners will pass by just after completing 16 miles. Then, hoof it across the Arlington Memorial Bridge, where you can either watch runners complete their final mile along Route 110 from an overpass or follow the trail across the street from the Arlington Cemetery entrance toward the finish line.

(Almost) Crowd-Free

You actually want to be able to hear after this whole thing is over; you want to offer support in relatively sparse areas along the course.

Start outside of the Rosslyn Metro station on North Lynn Street; runners will pass by after they've completed their first mile. Ride Metro to L'Enfant Plaza. Walk down 14th Street NW until you reach Ohio Drive — near Mile Marker 15, where runners are leaving the sparsely populated Hains Point. From there, continue walking southwest on 14th Street, approaching the ramp to the 14th Street bridge (you'll be walking along the side of the course; runners will have just passed Mile 20). Stop close to (or even on) the bridge, which is perhaps the loneliest portion of the race.

Boredom- & Hunger-Free

You need to be in close proximity to a pumpkin spice latte source; you're in from out of town and want to knock out some sightseeing as you cheer.

Start on M Street NW in Georgetown. If you stand near the Key Bridge, you'll catch runners here twice: once as they leave the bridge and turn left on Canal Road NW to approach Mile Marker 5, and again as they run back down Canal Road toward Mile Marker 9. Walk to the Foggy Bottom Metro and ride it to Smithsonian. Exit on the National Mall and walk to Madison Drive NW, where runners will pass you on their way to Mile Marker 18. Then, take the Metro to Crystal City to catch runners as they complete Miles 22 and 23. Save some cheering energy — most runners need a serious boost here.

Marathons are overrated, you say? It won't be easy to get around without feeling some impact, but we do have some tips if you want to get out and about:

Slow Going

Plan for delays, unless you are going on the Blue or Yellow lines. The tradeoff there is that the lines will be the most crowded since they serve key stops on the marathon course.

► Red Line: Trains will share a track between Twinbrook and Grosvenor and between Forest Glen and Takoma. Add an additional 15 minutes to your travel time if you must head through the work zones.

► Orange Line: Trains will share a track between Stadium-Armory and Cheverly. Expect at least 10-minute delays going through the construction.

► Green Line: Trains will share a track between Greenbelt and College Park, adding 15 minutes to travel time.

► Steer Clear of Rosslyn: Not only will there be hoards of people in and around the Marine Corps War Memorial (also known as the Iwo Jima Memorial) — which serves as the race's finish line — there will be tons of road closures. Wilson Boulevard, Lee Highway, Washington Boulevard and the George Washington Parkway are closed for at least a few hours.

► Avoid the Pentagon Station on the Blue and Yellow lines: Not only is it the easiest access point to the race's start point — meaning it will be crowded — but the bus terminal will be closed from 4 a.m. to 4 p.m. The bus service will be rerouted to Pentagon City, which will be battling street closures but is at least operational.

nicely. I'm a fan," Maxwell said. Mark Winchester, 21, who was coming from Rhode Island Avenue, commented on that pleasant "new escalator smell." And nearly everybody raved about getting back the 10 minutes they'd had to spend walking from the Dupont north entrance.

It's not a long trek, but it was an inconvenience, particularly for riders with health problems. Beth Conte, 51, who walks with a cane because of a bad hip, was relieved that she now just has to make it across the street to her office.

Swept up in the joy of the morning, even folks dwelling on the past were putting a positive spin on it. "It was kind of nice to have the change in scenery," said 62-year-old George Borababy, who enjoyed discovering new shops on his altered walk to work the past few months.

Amid the rainbows and unicorns — I didn't actually see them, but I'm pretty sure they were there — I bumped into Metro chief spokesman Dan Stessel, who started bragging about the escalators like a proud dad. "The steps and handrails are moving at the same speed," he said, noting that techs will be around for the next few weeks "ready to rock 'n' roll" in case there's a problem (such as Thursday morning's brief fire alarm-related shutdown).

I managed to find only one guy with a complaint all morning. Anthony Case, 33, had come in from Shady Grove hoping he'd be early enough to snag one of the signs announcing that the south entrance was closed. He wasn't. "I was going to dress up as it for Halloween," Case said.

But he'll settle for the shorter walk to his office — and one spectacular Monday morning.

U Got Served: Fed up with drivers who make illegal U-turns on Pennsylvania Avenue — directly through a bike lane and causing many close calls in the process — BicycleSPACE is gathering folks Friday morning at Freedom Plaza to bring awareness to the issue. They'll cruise up and down the lane, distribute safety information (for both drivers and riders) and collect signatures for a petition asking the city to boost enforcement and improve signage along the road. Police on Thursday said they have launched a criminal investigation following the release of undercover video showing the son of Rep. Jim Moran, D-Va., discussing a plan to cast fraudulent ballots. Patrick Moran resigned Wednesday as field director of his father's campaign after Project Veritas, an organization led by conservative activist James O'Keefe, released the video. (AP)

Police Investigating Deadly Shooting in NE

A man was shot at least twice in the head and killed Thursday afternoon near a busy road in Northeast Washington. The shooting occurred about 12:40 p.m. in the 3600 block of Benning Road, just west of the Anacostia Freeway. The victim was pronounced dead at the scene, and police said that they are beginning an investigation. (TWP)

Malvo: Muhammad Abused Me

During TV interview, sniper tells of sexual assault for first time

Washington

Lee Boyd Malvo, who with John Allen Muhammad terrorized the D.C. area a decade ago in one of the nation's most notorious killing sprees, told NBC's "Today" show that he was sexually abused by Muhammad beginning at age 14 and continuing until they were arrested.

In a series of interviews with The Washington Post last month, Malvo flatly denied any sexual contact with Muhammad. But in a 40-minute telephone interview with

Backstory

Lee Boyd Malvo, 27, who was one of two men convicted in the 2002 D.C. shootings that killed 10 people, told The Washington Post last month he was not in any way sexually molested during his relationship with the other sniper, John Allen Muhammad, and denied any sort of sexual relationship between the two. Malvo told The Post he was sexually molested by a neighbor and by relatives as a boy in the Caribbean, but said he has been "celibate" since. (TWP)

"Today's" Matt Lauer on Wednesday, he told a different story.

"For the entire period when I was almost 15 until I got arrested, I was sexually abused by John Muhammad," Malvo said in the interview, excerpts of which aired Thursday.

Malvo told Lauer that the reason he was speaking up for the first time about being abused by Muhammad "is because I am more mature. As far as the guilt that I carried around for several years, I dealt with that to a large extent for years. And now, I can handle this."

Malvo also told Lauer there are victims of the pair's shooting spree who have not been identified — a claim he has made in the past — and he indicated that he has reached out to the families of some of those victims.

Over 21 days in October 2002, the snipers ambushed 13 strangers in the Washington area, killing 10 of them. The shootings appear to have erupted out of Muhammad's fury at his ex-wife, who had moved away with their children.

Muhammad was executed for his role in the murder spree in 2009. Malvo, now 27, is serving a life sentence at Red Onion State Prison in southwest Virginia. JOSH WHITE AND CURT ANDERSON (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Metro OKs Fees, Later Service For Inauguration

Washington

The presidential election isn't over, but Metro riders can start preparing for Inauguration Day: The transit agency's board of directors approved plans Thursday that would extend service and hit riders with additional costs.

Inauguration Day is scheduled for Jan. 21. Trains would run from 4 a.m. until 2 a.m., and Metro plans to charge the weekday peak fare until 9 p.m. It will also charge the $5 fee at Metro parking garages, even though parking would otherwise be free due to the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday. (TWP)

Stern Retiring

NBA commissioner David Stern will retire Feb. 1, 2014, 30 years after he took charge of the league. He will be replaced by deputy commissioner Adam Silver. Stern, who turned 70 last month, has been the NBA's longest-serving commissioner, establishing the league's brand around the world. (AP)

3 Things to Watch

- 1 Streaking: London Fletcher hasn't missed a game in 15 seasons, but his 231-game streak is in jeopardy as the linebacker is suffering from a hamstring injury and balance issues. His loss would be a huge one for the Redskins' shaky defense.
- 2 Can they run? Washington's No. 1 rushing attack hasn't met much resistance, but Alfred Morris may get his sternest test of the season against Pittsburgh's traditionally strong rush defense, with anchor Casey Hampton plugging the middle.
- 3 Speed kills: Pittsburgh's speedy wide receiver corps, featuring Mike Wallace and Antonio Brown, has to be salivating at the chance to go against the Redskins' struggling secondary. E.S.

Surgery Possible: Redskins receiver Pierre Garçon says he has a torn ligament on the bottom of his right foot and he's hoping to avoid surgery. Garçon described the injury that's sidelined him for four of Washington's past six games as a "plantar plate tear" near his second toe. The plantar plate is a ligament that holds a toe in its joint. Garçon said Thursday that "surgery is an option" that probably would end his season. (AP)

He's Still Got It

Moss was supposed to be on his last legs. Now he's a top target.

The Redskins

At the start of the Redskins' season, expectations were that Pierre Garçon might use his playmaking ability or Leonard Hankerson his size or Aldrick Robinson his speed to join forces with Robert Griffin III and give the Redskins a dynamic, young quarterback-wide-receiver combo.

But once again, it's savvy veteran Santana Moss who has stepped to the forefront. Thought to be on his last legs at the advanced wide-receiver age of 33, Moss is putting together a solid season for Washington, and he'll be Griffin's primary target when the team battles the Steelers in Pittsburgh on Sunday afternoon.

"He's a guy that has seen it all, done it all, and can still do a lot with the abilities that he has. He can be a security blanket," Griffin said.

Moss has 19 catches for 290 yards this season — numbers that don't tell the whole story given the Redskins' prolific rushing attack and RGIII's nature to find a variety of targets.

But it's Moss who leads the receivers in touchdowns with four, and he often seems to be the receiver Griffin turns to in clutch situations. That role likely will intensify with tight end Fred Davis out for the season and a foot injury jeopardizing Garçon's (see below).

"As a receiver, the only thing you have on your mind is trying to make that play," Moss said. "And once you make that play, what you do afterward."

Moss made several big plays against the Giants, including scoring the go-ahead touchdown in the fourth quarter. But he also fumbled the ball in the waning seconds of the contest to seal Washington's defeat.

1 P.M.
Sunday | Fox

"You're going to be up, you're going to be down, and it's how you handle it," he said. "I've handled 'em all. I took it for what it was, dealt with it and now it's on to a new week."

Earlier this year, Moss caught his 500th pass with the Redskins and is approaching 10,000 yards for his career, but right now, he's feeling like a new player. Washington coach Mike Shanahan is using Moss in limited bursts, and without having to carry the burden of the offense, the speedy receiver is making his time count.

"I'm excited about the opportunities we have on this offense because everyone can step up and be a part of what we're doing," Moss said. ELLIOTT SMITH (FOR EXPRESS)

Terps Lose Another Quarterback

Burns hurt himself in reserve last week, Maryland reveals

Terps Football

First it was C.J. Brown. The junior quarterback tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee during preseason practice. Out for the season. Freshman Perry Hills lasted longer, playing into the season's seventh game before he tore the ACL in his left knee. Gone for the year.

On Thursday, the Maryland Terrapins broke the news that they've lost a third quarterback. Sophomore Devin Burns replaced Hills last week against North Carolina State and led the Terrapins on three second-half scoring drives, carrying the ball more than throwing it in an effective read-option offensive scheme. He might have taken over as permanent starter had he not suffered a Lisfranc (midfoot) injury.

That leaves freshman Caleb Rowe as the only quarterback left to have even graced the Terps' (4-3, 2-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) depth chart this season. Rowe got on the field for three rather impressive plays last week.

A stronger passer than Burns,

Rowe took over with the team trailing by two points with 32 seconds left and drove the Terrapins from their own 25-yard line down to the Wolfpack's 15, setting up a potential game-winning field goal. The kick clanked off the goal post and Maryland lost a game that coach Randy Edsall called "heartbreaking."

1 P.M.
Sat. | ESPN3

think it kind of speaks for itself," Edsall said Tuesday. "Then we see Caleb come in and scramble out of the pocket and make some of the throws he did. They are both excellent quarterbacks. They are both guys I trust, our guys trust and our players trust to be able to do the job and do it effectively."

Until last Saturday, Edsall intended to keep Rowe on the bench, preserving his redshirt season. But circumstances changed quickly and he's now the unquestioned starter on a team two wins away from bowl eligibility with five games remaining.

Saturday's game against Boston College (1-6, 0-4) is expected to be the easiest of the bunch, and perhaps a good opportunity for the freshman to gain game experience.

Rowe is known as an accurate passer and is more mobile than Hills. His cameo last week was an enticing teaser for the Terps. Now they'll find out if he can sustain it.

REDSKINS (PLUS 4.5) AT STEELERS

REDSKINS

There's no logic here, but I'm going to be a homer.

SEAHAWKS (PLUS 1) AT LIONS

SEAHAWKS

Lions can't score until the fourth quarter and it's costing them.

FALCONS (PLUS 1) AT EAGLES

FALCONS

I'm tempted to pick Philly, but the turnover problems are just too much.

GIANTS (MINUS 1) AT COWBOYS

GIANTS

Break up the Cowboys. They really should because they are a mess.

SAINTS (PLUS 6) AT BRONCOS

SAINTS

Five road teams in five picks? I've come too far to go back now.

STEELERS

Injuries too much for even RGIII to overcome.

SEAHAWKS

Good thing D town has the Tigers.

FALCONS

Bye week won't stop Vick from turnovers.

GIANTS

Loss of LB Lee a crusher for the Cowboys.

BRONCOS

Take the over. Points are going on the board.

STEELERS

"Imagine when they get this kid a defense" — entire NFL on the Redskins.

LIONS

Seahawks' "no name" defense remains anonymous away from Seattle.

FALCONS

Philly math: Can't score + Vick turnover machine = new defensive coordinator.

GIANTS

After losing, Jerry Jones wants to fire the GM... oh, wait.

BRONCOS

Brees prank calls Manning for 2 million Papa John's pizzas.

STEELERS

Washington will have the classiest uniforms. The Steelers will score more points.

LIONS

Both teams covered against the spread in horrific fashion last week. Not that I have a problem or anything.

EAGLES

Teams have been unbeatable off the bye week this season, so this will likely be a tie.

GIANTS

At some point, people will probably stop saying that the NFC East is wide open.

BRONCOS

Free bonus pick: Minnesota upsets Purdue. Thank me later.

Playoff Positioning At Stake for United

D.C. enters finale with a shot at No. 2 seed in conference

Major League Soccer

The hard part is over for D.C. United. The club clinched its first MLS playoff berth in five years last Saturday with a win over Columbus, and can turn its attention to playoff seeding now that it has secured a place among the final five teams in the Eastern Conference.

Sporting Kansas City's win over Philadelphia Wednesday ensured that D.C. can finish no higher than second in the conference. Depending on how the final weekend of the season plays out, D.C. can finish as low as fourth and be forced to play a one-off wild-card game against the fifth seed (Houston or New York). Either way, D.C. is guaranteed at least one home playoff game, as the wild-card round would be held at RFK Stadium should D.C. get the fourth seed, and the conference semifinals are a two-leg, home-and-away aggregate series.

Here are D.C.'s playoff scenarios entering Saturday's regular-season finale at the Chicago Fire:

► D.C. finishes with the second seed if: it draws or wins at Chicago. D.C. has a one-point lead over the Fire and won their only other meeting this season, 4-2 at home.

► D.C. finishes with the third seed if: it loses to Chicago and New York draws/loses against Philadelphia on Saturday or beats Philadelphia and winds up with fewer total goals scored than D.C. this season (New York currently has a 54-52 edge).

► D.C. finishes with the fourth seed if: it loses to Chicago and New York beats Philadelphia and winds up with more total goals scored than D.C. AVI CREDITOR (FOR EXPRESS)

When Federal Realty Investment Trust purchased the 261,000-square-foot retail property along Campbell Avenue, now officially known as the “Village at Shirlington,” in 1995, there were a few stores sprinkled on the west end, and the AMC Loews Shirlington 7 was showing a variety of indie flicks. But the cafe-culture that makes Shirlington so popular among young professionals today didn’t exist, says John Tschiderer, vice president of development at Federal Realty.

Today, the Village is thriving, with 26 restaurants, bars and coffee shops. You can indulge in some fresh guacamole and a pitcher of

The small-town vibe mixed with big-city convenience is making the area, which once catered to the 30- to 50-year-old demographic, more attractive to the 25- to 34-year-old crowd.

“It’s a popular place for first-time buyers,” says Pat Shannon, a real-estate agent with Long & Foster. “I’d say price is the No. 1 factor.”

A one-bedroom condo in Shirlington costs between $250,000 and $375,000; a two-bedroom ranges from $275,000 to $600,000, she says.

Shirlington Takes Shape

Restaurants, shops and affordable prices lure buyers to the once-quiet Virginia neighborhood

It's a typical Thursday night in Shirlington, a growing neighborhood in South Arlington. The sound of live jazz fills the air outside Signature Theatre (4200 Campbell Ave., Arlington; 703-820-9771, Signature-theatre.org). The little round tables that have been set up in the middle of Campbell Avenue in front of the theater begin to fill up quickly, as thirsty patrons line up for their $5 wine tastings from nearby wine and cheese bar Cheesetique (4056 Campbell Ave., Arlington; 703-933-8787, Cheesetique.com).

Behind the makeshift stage where the jazz musicians have set up, children play alongside a water fountain as their mothers sip iced lattes from the Caribou Coffee down the street. The recently remodeled Shirlington Branch Library (4200 Campbell Ave., Arlington; 703-228-6545, Library.arlingtonva.us) has just closed for the day, but bookworms still crowd the bistro tables outside of it, taking advantage of free Wi-Fi or soaking up the last of that day's sunshine, book in hand.

Jewel Plummer enjoys the music as she sits on a bench outside Johnny Rockets, waiting for a friend to join her and for their “regular” bench to open up. Plummer, who has rented in Shirlington for 10 years, has witnessed its transformation from a suburban ghost town to a pedestrian-friendly, urban oasis.

“When I moved here 10 years ago, none of this was like this,” says Plummer, who rents a condo at the Windgate a few blocks down from the bustling commercial district. “The neighborhood has completely evolved over the years. And it’s still growing.”

Shirlington, which gets its name from its location just off Interstate 395 (also known as Shirley Highway) in Arlington, is just minutes by car from downtown Washington, D.C., or a short bus ride from Pentagon Metro station. About 265,000 people live within a three-mile radius of the commercial core, with I-395 serving as the main north-south artery. It’s bordered by King Street and Four Mile Run Drive.

Rachel and Jamie Auslander rented in several different Arlington neighborhoods before purchasing their four-bedroom, three-and-a-half-bathroom townhouse in the Shirlington Crest development, just around the corner from the commercial corridor. They paid roughly $660,000 for a new luxury townhouse in 2010 but say the same home in almost any other neighborhood would have cost upwards of $1 million.

"We don't really want to go much farther outside the city than this," says Jamie Auslander, 33. "You just get a bigger bang for your buck here, and it's an easy commute." It takes Auslander, a lawyer, about 40 minutes to get to his downtown D.C. office.

love how their neighborhood has grown. Rita Becker, 68, has lived in Shirlington for 18 years. She purchased her two-bedroom condo on South Walter Reed Drive for around $140,000 before Federal Realty started building up the neighborhood.

"There was no charm, no diversity and really no place to eat when I first purchased," Becker says.

That's not the case anymore. Today, she says, her condo, which is located in the Heatherlea complex, is worth between $320,000 and $340,000.

"I see jumping dogs, happy babies, little kids, people exercising and older couples walking," she says. "It's a nice mixture." AMY MCCULLOUGH (FOR EXPRESS)

The View From Inside

Two local real-estate agents share their tricks of the trades

Buying and Selling

Unless you're Donald Trump, you're probably not negotiating real-estate deals on a daily basis. Most people buy or sell a home only a handful of times in their lives, and it's a process that leaves many mystified.

Hans and Steve Wydler, founders of local residential real-estate company Wydler Brothers (Wydlerbrothers.com), hope to change that with their new book "Inside the Sell" (LINX, $22). It arms buyers and sellers with the skills they need to navigate the world of real estate.

Why did you want to expose the unspoken secrets of real estate?

Hans Wydler: It's hard for clients to know whether they're getting good service or bad service. Sometimes things that are portrayed as an advantage to the client really are not; they're intended to benefit the brokers at the clients' expense.

Like what?

Steve Wydler: The private, exclusive listing. The agent appeals to the seller's ego, saying, "It's such a great listing. We only want the cream of the crop. I'll market it privately." It sounds appealing, but the seller will never know what could have happened if the listing had been exposed to the entire market.

What are common mistakes that buyers make in a market like this?

HW: A buyer sees a home that's been on the market for a long time and they think they're getting a great deal on a house. But there is usually some issue with the house. You'll find that when it's your turn to sell, it's going to be a challenge.

Why do you think buyers and sellers should work with an agent?

SW: We believe that people vastly underestimate the time involved in selling a home and overestimate their skill set in doing so.

What are some negotiating tips?

HW: Don't talk too much. And try to understand the motivation for the other side. Get as much intelligence on the competition as you possibly can. Are there two offers or five offers? What is the seller's timing? All of those little things can help give someone an advantage when buying a home.

SW: You can be a tough negotiator in a fair and respectful way. It doesn't have to be war; it doesn't have to be emotional. The best transactions are the ones where it's a hagfest at the closing table.

Turn your apartment's boring kitchen into a space you love — without losing your security deposit

Decor

Kitchens can be a source of anxiety for renters. Unless you're one of the lucky few renting an apartment with a gleaming, new kitchen, you might have to deal with cramped storage, outdated cabinetry or lighting befitting a prison cell.

You don't need to persuade your landlord to do major renovations. Small changes can have big payoffs in terms of how much you enjoy the space — and can help you put your own stamp on the apartment. "The kitchen is one of my favorite places to go to personalize," says designer Marika Meyer of Marika Meyer Interiors (Meyerinteriors.com).

Not Enough Storage Space

Nothing makes a kitchen less appealing than clutter. If your kitchen has little or no storage space, clip The Container Store's undershelf baskets onto existing shelves to create extra nooks for storing small items (Thecontainerstore.com).

You can also mount floating shelves on your walls for storage and display, although you'll want to get your landlord's permission before drilling holes in the walls.

Or take a page out of Julia Child's book and use a pegboard to hold pots, pans, utensils and even kettles. Frequently found holding hammers in the toolshed, these wooden boards have pre-drilled pegholes in which you can hang just about anything. To make your pegboard kitchen-friendly, consider painting it an interesting color.

"You can lean it right up against the wall, or you can wall mount it with some simple screws," Meyer says. Just remember if you make holes in the walls, you'll have to patch them before you move out.

This requires keeping your pots and

Rental Kitchens

pans presentable. "If it's gonna be on display, it better be good-looking and clean," says Nestor Santa-Cruz, an interior designer in D.C. (Nestorsantacruz.com).

Bland Cabinets

If your cabinets lack personality, freshen them up with unique knobs and pulls. Check out Anthropologie (Anthropologie.com) and World Market (Worldmarket.com) for colorful options.

Just don't lose the originals. "Save the ones that you had before, and then you can replace them when you need," Santa Cruz says.

nextweek

They do it on sitcoms all the time, but in real life it's hard to share an apartment with roommates you don't know. Find tips on making it work in next week's section.

Another option for cabinet-haters: Remove the doors altogether to create an open-air look. This technique should only be applied to upper cabinets and nothing low to the ground. Remember to keep the doors somewhere safe, so you can put them back in place before you move out.

If you go this route, it's best to have nice-looking stuff. "Have a simple collection of plates," Meyer says. "Keep things very neatly stacked and ordered."

Gross Floors

You can also improve the look of your floors — even if previous tenants had a tendency to spill red wine and spaghetti sauce.

Don't be afraid to put a rug in the kitchen. Yes, it will have food spilled on

Now You're Cooking

1. It's made for kids, but Land of Nod's "I Could've Bin a Container" organizer adds color to kitchen walls. ($49, Landofnod.com) 2. Ikea's plug-in Kvart lamp can clip to a shelf or be mounted to a wall ($6.99, Ikea.com) 3. Create more shelf space with the Container Store's undershelf baskets ($6.99-$8.99, Containerstore.com) 4. Jewel-like knobs make any cabinets cuter ($7.99 for a pair, Worldmarket.com) 5. Create extra space with Simple Human's grey cabinet organizers ($39.99-$59.99, Simplehuman.com)

A backsplash can make a big difference in the look of a kitchen. Try stick-on designs, such as the copper and stainless steel styles above from Home Portfolio (Homeportfolio.com).

it, so look for something that's easy to clean, such as a flatweave, seagrass or indoor-outdoor rug. Bolon (Bolon.com) makes easy-to-clean, vinyl rugs that can be cut to fit your space (available at Sisalcarpet.com).

Be sure to put rubberized backing on rugs to prevent slippage.

If you aren't crazy about rugs, consider cutting linoleum floor tile sheets to the shape of the floor and laying them over the old floor to make a temporary cover, Santa-Cruz suggests. Secure them with hot glue or another removable sticky substance.

Bad Lighting

Are your kitchen's flickering fluorescent light makes your eyeballs hurt? The first step is switching out the fluorescents with incandescent bulbs wherever you can.

If you need more light, buy plug-in light fixtures so you don't have to deal with messy wiring. Save floor space by using hanging lights or sconces that plug into an electrical outlet (Ikea.com and Lampsplus.com sell a variety).

Boring Backsplash

A backsplash is the stretch of wall that starts below the cabinets and ends at the countertops. It's a small area that can make a big difference in the feel of the room.

You don't have to make permanent changes to liven up a backsplash. Home Depot (Homedepot.com) sells peel-and-stick tiles in a range of colors, styles and materials, including stainless steel, that you can stick on the backsplash and peel off later.

"You might just want to add a fun punch of color," Meyer says. "It could have a really high-level impact."

JORDAN WHITLEY

Marisa Lynch

DRESS REDESIGNER, CRAFT QUEEN

To call Marisa Lynch "resourceful" is an understatement. Upon losing her magazine job on the verge of her 30th birthday, the recreational seamstress busied herself with a challenge: Transform a previously owned disaster-of-a-dress into something wearable every day for a year, for less than a buck each, and showcase it on her blog, Newdressaday.com. Her new book of the same name documents the journey and doles out "Dressipes" and lots of pop-culture references ("Clueless" quotes! Kelly Kapowski name-dropping!) that will make you wish this damsel in a DIY frock was your bestie ($20, Ballantine Books).

You dedicate your book to the crafty lads and ladies in us all. How can we tap into that?

Don't start with something you've loved forever. Go to Goodwill or a garage sale and get something you have no attachment to. Cutting up something you don't care about can be empowering!

You call yourself a guerilla seamstress. Can you elaborate?

I'm not a classically trained seamstress by any means, and I think that's what separates me from the "Project Runway" contestants. If a dress is too short, I'll take out the hem and leave the raw edge, whereas the professional seamstresses out there would say you can't do that. But that's my "make it work" moment.

What's an easy yet dramatic tweak you make to garments?

It can be such a drastic difference to just add buttons to something.

It's quick to do and it's something people can do.

And your favorite no-sew trick?

I love vintage pins. There's one look in the book where I took a pin and used it to cinch an outstretched waistline. Not only can you use them to make something fit, you can also use it to hide a spot. I'll also take a pin, add it to a chain and wear it as a quick necklace.

"People will ask me, 'Where did you get that?' And it's the best feeling to be able to say, 'I made it.'

What do you look for when picking dresses to manipulate?

I'm drawn to bold, fun patterns. I also love sequins. Anything that's sparkly, really. A lot of the time, I buy pieces that I feel connected to, not knowing what to do with it until I take it home and play around with it. I never worry about holes or stains. That's always something that can always be adjusted in the final stages.

Do you have any favorite online resources?

I'm such a weekend thrifter and garage saler that I rarely buy clothing online. I've bought a lot of beads and buttons on eBay and Etsy, so I will head there if I can't find stuff on my own.

What's been the most rewarding part of this whole process?

Every time I wear a piece I made out, people will ask me, "Where did you get that?" And it's the best feeling to be able to say, "I made it, but I'm so glad you like it."

Event Horizon | Hair-Raising Fashion Show

This Sunday, Bella Bethesda Salon (now in its fifth year) is hosting Hair to Heal, a runway-style show of updos inspired by nature's elements. Proceeds from the event benefit Look Good Feel Better, which provides assistance to women going through cancer treatments. Tickets are $40, Sunday, 5-8 p.m. Learn more at Bellabethesda.com.

A Shu Thing

AS CREATIVE director for Chanel, Karl Lagerfeld is known for attention-grabbing designs (see: hula hoop purse, Spring 2013 Fashion Week). His collaboration with cosmetics powerhouse Shu Uemura is no exception (Shuemura-usa.com). Lagerfeld's tweed illustrations grace tubes of lipstick (shown, $30), eyeshadow palettes ($65) and red-and-black false eyelash kits ($65).

Creepy Cups

YOUR KID'S GRADE SCHOOL may no longer allow Halloween parties and costumes, but send them armed with some of Baker's Corner's easy-to-make, tasty-to-chomp treats, and the politically correct "fall festival" will be a thing of the past. Bake your brains out (and save some cash) with confetti cake mix (99 cents), mouth-dying frostings ($1.29) and spooky sprinkles ($3), all at local Aldi stores.

Grab Bag

Take Note

OLD SCHOOL MEETS high-tech with Wonder Thread's new collection of iPad sleeves (Wonderthreads.com) modeled after the black-and-white composition books that ran rampant in 10th grade (shown, $40). Other styles include interoffice envelope-inspired laptop sleeves for 11-, 13- or 17-inch MacBooks ($42-$46) lined with micro-fleece that protects against dings.

Bargain Base

IT TOOK DIGGING, but eventually we found something at the new Willow boutique for more than $50 (a $60 retro oxblood dress). Otherwise, every women's frock, jacket, sweater and accessory at this Petworth spot costs less than a Ulysses S. Grant (843 Upshur St. NW; 202-269-2323). There are also upcycled home goods (hand-painted Mason jars, D.C. flag dishes) and craft supplies (canvases, paints) if you're inspired by the loot.

If Walls Could Rock

OTHERWORLDLY animals, obsolete technology and kooky figures star in Philadelphia graphic artist Jim Houser's works. His new stick-on wall tiles and decals for Blik include Amps (shown, $50, Whatisblik.com), a cowboy peppered with arrows ($45) and a surreal scallop pattern ($50). Any provide a jolt of style—and humor—to a den or kid's room.

Dear Manolo

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

I'm having a hard time deciding on a Halloween costume. My choices: Morticia Addams (in a short skirt), a sexy librarian or Sarah Palin. Which would be the best? What shoes should I wear? —EMMY

Manolo says, the Manolo remembers when the Halloween was a holiday for the kids, who dressed up like the ballerina, the cowboy or the Superman and took delight in seasonal joys of carving the pumpkins, eating the candy and "scaring" the neighbors.

But then, sometime around the 1995, the Halloween metamorphosed into the fully adult holiday, in which the little kids are almost the after-thought. Now it has become our annual Brazen Festival of Hoochie Unbound, the Dionysian bacchanal in which even the most matronly soccer mom must put on the micromini dress and halter top and become the Sexy Nurse, the Sexy Pirate Lady or the Sexy Eleanor Roosevelt.

The Manolo suggests tossing out the old, exhausted Sexy Something Halloween template and going with more creative costuming. Instead of tarting up the mundane (Sexy Meter Maid!), try to de-tart something alluring: Unsexy Stripper, Unsexy Scarlett Johansson, Unsexy Librarian.

Here is the Park boot from the Stuart Weitzman ($595, Zappos.com), which would look great under the full-length, tweed skirt that is the centerpiece of your Unsexy Victorian Trollop outfit.

Ask the Manolo a question at manolo@shoeblogs.com. Visit the Manolo at shoeblogs.com.

Scare Tactics

It's Halloween night and you're stranded without a costume. The horror! Rather than staying home and dishing out Kit Kats in shame or — worse — going as a default sexy fill-in-the-blank/overplayed political figure, consult our guide to a dozen last-minute ensembles that you can whip up from common household items. These no-sew, few-to-no-dollars-needed options each take less than 10 minutes to put together and guarantee big laughs, if not a few head scratches. If nothing else, they'll get a conversation going and might even spark some new friendships. Do we smell a group costume for next year? HOLLEY SIMMONS (EXPRESS)

THE PUN

Best for: Witty wordsmiths

Our Pick: Caesar Salad

Wrap yourself in a white sheet, toga-style. (Finally, your college education comes in handy.) Using a hot-glue gun, adhere lettuce leaves (romaine works best) and croutons all over it. Point a bottle of Caesar salad dressing at everyone while crying "Et tu!"

Other Ideas

- » Tickled Pink: Dress in all pink and carry around a feather
- » Capitol Hill-Billy: Wear a Polo shirt and cowboy boots and chew on hay
- » Ceiling Fan: Wear a jersey and chant "Go Ceilings!" all night

Avoid This

Cereal Killer is quite clever (stab an empty box of Lucky Charms all night), but something tells us carrying a knife at a party is a bad idea.

THE MEME

Best for: Social-media savants

Our Pick: Photo-Bombing Stingray

This slimy guy caused a cyber-stir when he sneak-attacked three unsuspecting women posing for a pic. (Google it.) To re-create the incident, cut both sides of a grey pillowcase to form a long strip of fabric. Split the middle seam to make a hole for your face. Wear sneakers so you can dash around and ruin revelers' photos.

Other Ideas

- » Ermahgerd Girl: Put your hair in pigtails and carry three books (preferably "Goosebumps" titles)
- » Texts from Hillary: Wear sunglasses and stare at your phone all night
- » McKayla Maroney: Don a scrunchie, medal and grimace

Avoid This

Step away from the bow tie and blazer. One PSY is more than enough.

THE ELECTION

Best for: Election enthusiasts

Our Pick: Popular Vote

Channel your inner Cher from "Clueless" and wear head-to-toe designer clothing and accessories. Pin "Vote" buttons all over (we made our own oversized versions using Sharpies) and be preoccupied with your phone all night. When people ask what you are, roll your eyes and remind them to vote Nov. 6.

Other Ideas

- » Electoral Collage: Wear a college tee or sweatshirt and pin pictures of political figures all over
- » Undecided Voter: Wear an equal mix of red and blue and constantly shrug your shoulders
- » Clint Eastwood: Talk to empty chairs all night

Avoid This

The Binders Full of Women club is overplayed (and sounds uncomfortable). Same goes for Unemployed Big Bird and Pumping Iron Paul Ryan.

Course of Humanity

No matter how heady or mind-numbing it gets, 'Cloud Atlas' remains humanistic

Film Review

If ever there existed an unadaptable book, it's "Cloud Atlas," David Mitchell's 2004 novel that possesses a daunting, densely woven multipart structure, characters who appear and reappear throughout six eras and even an original, never-before-heard language. A metaphysical meditation that careers from the 19th century to the 24th — zigging, zagging, doubling back and hairpinning along the way — "Cloud Atlas" is an unparalleled work of literary and moral imagination, an ambitious ziggurat that takes readers to the heights of wordplay, philosophy and storytelling itself.

"Cloud Atlas" deserves praise for not being the baggy, pretentious disaster it could have been.

It seems appropriate that it has taken not one but three filmmakers to bully "Cloud Atlas" to the screen: A structural and narrative challenge as prodigious as this one needs many hands on deck to bring the multitudes it contains to life.

While Tom Tykwer, Andy Wachowski and Lana Wachowski haven't necessarily expanded on Mitchell's original book, they've done a superlative job at making it legible onscreen. "Cloud Atlas" deserves praise if only for not being the baggy, pretentious disaster it could have been in other hands.

At its simplest, "Cloud Atlas" tells the interlocking stories of several characters over a 500-year time

"Cloud Atlas" features interwoven stories, different time periods and actors playing multiple roles. Those pictured include, from top: Xun Zhou and Tom Hanks; Doona Bae; Hanks, Jim Sturgess and Jim Broadbent; and Halle Berry and Hanks.

span: Adam Ewing (Jim Sturgess), a San Francisco attorney traveling in the Pacific Islands in 1849; Rufus Sixsmith (James D'Arcy), a brilliant young composer plying his trade in pre-World War II Britain; Luisa Rey (Halle Berry), a journalist investigating environmental corruption in 1973 San Francisco; Timothy Cavendish (Jim Broadbent), a London publisher on the professional and personal ropes; Sonmi 351 (Doona Bae), a genetically engineered service worker laboring in New Seoul in 2144 and Zachry (Tom Hanks), the indigenous inhabitant of an island engaged in perpetual tribal warfare in the 2300s.

How these disparate players intersect becomes the labyrinthine game of "Cloud Atlas," in which each story line gets its own distinc-

Cloud Atlas (R)

 ► Stars: Tom Hanks, Halle Berry, Jim Broadbent and Hugh Grant
 ► In a Nutshell: An exploration of how the actions of individual lives impact one another in the past, present and future, as one soul is shaped from a killer into a hero, and an act of kindness inspires a revolution.

tive look and tone: historical drama for Ewing, "Masterpiece Theater"-worthy tastefulness for Sixsmith; "French Connection"-era naturalism for Luisa Rey; cozy British comedy for Cavendish; Wachowski-esque pop futurism for Sonmi and scarified postmodern primitivism for Zachry.

As a parable of connectedness, liberation and progressive martyrdom (each protagonist grapples with some form of oppression, whether it's based on race, sexual orientation, gender, age, genetics or planetary origin), "Cloud Atlas" conveys exhilaratingly humanist values, whether couched in the cinematic vernacular of computer-game kitsch or twee British slapstick.

At its best, "Cloud Atlas" represents just the kind of nerve and ingenuity that movies so desperately need these days. As a hymn to mutability — human and cinematic — "Cloud Atlas" reaches for the high notes and hits them often enough.

Acting Distinctive Roles

One of the small miracles of "Cloud Atlas" is that every cast member manages to create at least one palpable, memorable character within structure that threatens to blow apart. (TWP)

The Reelist

Acting Accordingly

I would not want to be a leading actor with Oscar dreams this year. Dwight Henry ("Beasts of the Southern Wild") and Jake Gyllenhaal ("End of Watch") turned in performances that normally would be shoo-ins for nods — but they're staring down a late-season freight train crammed with contenders: Jude Law ("Anna Karenina"), Bill Murray as FDR ("Hyde Park on Hudson"), Daniel Day-Lewis ("Lincoln"), Anthony Hopkins ("Hitchcock") and Jamie Foxx ("Django Unchained").

Driving the train is John Hawkes for "The Sessions," opening in limited release Friday. Hawkes plays Mark O'Brien, a real-life journalist and poet who spent most of his life in an iron lung after contracting polio and who employs a sex surrogate (Helen Hunt) to lose his virginity. Hawkes' performance is better than the middling script deserves, and it likely would earn him a win any other year.

The funny thing about this year's race isn't that all the performances are that great (though many are). It's more that it's turning into a battle of Awards Cliches. Oscar voters love disability (advantage Hawkes and Murray). They love when actors play historical figures (Day-Lewis, Hopkins and Murray). Lately beginner's luck seems to have played a part (a point to Henry).

When February comes, the man holding the trophy may not be the one who gave the best performance, but the one who best played by the rules.

Catch an Uplifting Wave

Film Review

There are two monster waves in "Chasing Mavericks," a surfing movie inspired by the life of Jay Moriarity, the Northern California teenager who in 1994 became a celebrity in the surfing world after riding the infamous swells off Half Moon Bay known as Mavericks.

One is the literal mass of churning, white water — more washing machine than wave, due to the bay's unusual reef formation — that lends the movie its name and its dramatic power. The other is a more figurative hydraulic — the tsunami of schmaltzy melodrama that, at times, threatens to swamp the proceedings, which at heart are actually kind of thrilling and inspirational.

Chasing Mavericks

► Directors: Michael Apted and Curtis Hanson

Although "Mavericks" is structured around the quasi father-son relationship between the squeaky-clean Jay (Jonny Weston) and Frosty Hesson (Gerard Butler), the gruff, grizzled surfing veteran who becomes the teen's life coach and trainer, there's lots of extraneous plotting — which is handled in such a prefab manner that it feels phony.

"Chasing Mavericks" builds, perhaps not exactly like the majestic, 40-foot walls of water that are its subject, but with a satisfying enough crash. MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Few Treats In 'Fun Size'

This Halloween flick for teens ignores the 'fun' its title promises

Film Review

"Fun Size" is a 90-minute theatrical release from Nickelodeon Productions that, if anything, should have aired as a half-hour Nickelodeon special.

Instead, here it comes into multiplexes five days before Oct. 31 to try to steal some box-office cash from bored teens or parents who would rather take their kids to a crummy Halloween comedy than spend the weekend carving jack-o'-lanterns.

Moms, dads, do what you have to do. But know this: Submerging one's hands in gooshy pumpkin guts is a pleasure compared with sitting through this often crass romp about a teenage girl (Victoria Justice) who loses her little brother (Jackson Nicoll) during a trick-or-treating mishap while their mom (Chelsea Handler) hangs out with her boyfriend. Unless, of course, you are a huge fan of the genre "Movies in Which Dudes Wearing Togas Pass Gas Into Chelsea Handler's Cellphone." If that's the case, this movie is your "Godfather: Part II."

If you really must know: Wren (Justice) — the sort of improbably gorgeous and geeky young woman who exists only in movies, male fantasies and movies greenlighted by males who have hot nerd-girl fantasies — gets invited to a Halloween party by dreamy classmate Aaron Riley (Thomas McDonell).

So clearly, Wren and her best friend, April (Jane Levy), just have to go. But there's a problem: Wren's mother tells Wren to take Albert, her nonspeaking Tasmanian Devil of a little brother, trick-or-treating so that mom and her boyfriend can hit a party of their own.

Fun Size (PG-13)

► Director: Josh Schwartz
► Stars: Victoria Justice, Chelsea Handler and Jane Levy
► In a Nutshell: Wren's Halloween plans go awry when she's made to babysit her brother, who disappears into a sea of trick-or-treaters — leaving her to track him down.

Wren begrudgingly does her sisterly duty but, of course, loses track of Albert, who wanders off and naturally gets caught up in a quest for vengeance involving toilet paper and a convenience store clerk named Fuzzy. (And, eventually, Wren realizes she's really in love with her nerd friend Roosevelt (Thomas Mann), not Aaron.)

In short, if you pay money to see "Fun Size," it's possible you'll feel like suing the studio for false advertising, since the word "fun" doesn't quite describe this cinematic experience.

Feels Like the Very First Time

'The Sessions' is the rare mid-age virginity story that packs a real emotional punch

Film Review

It's a premise that launched 1,000 raunchy sex comedies (and Steve Carell's career): A guy somehow makes it to middle age without having had sex, embarks on a mission to lose his virginity, and laughter, hijinks and happily-ever-afters follow.

John Hawkes fully embodies the late poet Mark O'Brien in "The Sessions."

The Sessions (R)

► Director: Ben Lewin
► Stars: John Hawkes, Helen Hunt
► In a Nutshell: A man in an iron lung who wants to lose his virginity contacts a sex surrogate.

Thankfully, plenty of laughs do ensue in "The Sessions," in which John Hawkes doesn't play as much as channel the late poet and author Mark O'Brien. A man of prickly, unsentimental humor, O'Brien suffered most of his life from polio, which left him severely disabled and confined to an iron lung.

"The Sessions" is based on two articles O'Brien wrote about enlisting the services of a surrogate sex partner (played by Helen Hunt).

There are so many ways it could have gone wrong, but director Ben Lewin manages to keep "The Sessions" from succumbing to traps, creating a movie that brims with spiky humor, indefatigable resolve and profound emotional truth.

'Masquerade' (NR)

A sumptuous yet sometimes earthy costume epic, "Masquerade" offers a fictional answer to a historical question: Why did Korea's 17th-century King Gwang-hae (Lee Byung-hun, right) briefly act like a regular guy? The movie supposes, implausibly but entertainingly, that Gwanghae behaved like one of the common people because he was. That is, the man who ruled Korea for two weeks in 1616 was actually the king's body double. The film is, above all, a showcase for Lee Byung-hun, who doesn't waste the opportunity in both roles. MARK JENKINS (THE WASHINGTON POST)

'Simon & the Oaks' (NR)

This stirring, philosophically minded Swedish drama covers 13 years, during which the title character grows from a boy, played by Jonatan S. Wachter, to a man, played by Bill Skarsgård. In the process, Simon Larsson weathers some pretty profound storms. That World War II is one of those storms is mitigated by the fact that Simon is a Swede, living in a country that managed to maintain its neutrality, while neighboring countries were occupied by the Nazis. It's also a larger meditation on life's hardships and what endures: love, art and civilization. MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN (TWP)

'Pusher' (R)

Think you've had a bad week? Be glad you're not Frank (Richard Coyle, right, with Agyness Deyn). He's a small-time drug dealer who, over the course of seven days, loses a kilo of cocaine, gets arrested, witnesses a violent suicide and is pursued by a gangster, to whom he owes a large sum. M.O. As novelist James Patterson's beloved Washington-based detective and Sherlock Holmes-ian forensic psychologist, Perry has a tall order to fill. Not only must he banish all thoughts of Morgan Freeman, who portrayed the character in earlier films, but he also must shake his association with Madea, the over-the-top drag role for which Perry is best known. Over the course of "Alex Cross," which follows the detective's pursuit of a psychopathic assassin who has killed Cross' wife, our hero turns into a morally dubious avenging angel. Freeman would likely not have fared much better than Perry does here, considering the unsubtle material that the movie's cast has to work with. M.O.

lessons in electricity and reanimates the pet pooch. All is well until some of Victor's classmates get wind of the secret experiment and begin resurrecting all of their dearly departed pets, too, including a hamster and some Sea-Monkeys. Designed to appeal to both discriminating adults and older kids, the gorgeous, black-and-white stop-motion film is a fresh, clever and affectionate love letter to classic horror movies. Warning: It is decidedly not for little children. M.O.

HERE COMES THE BOOM (PG, 105 minutes) Kevin James plays Scott Voss, a Boston biology teacher who comes to the aid of the school's gentle music instructor, Marty Streb (Henry Winkler), when the board tries to cut extracurricular activities — band included. So the former wrestler looks into MMA, where the loser of a bout can bank $10,000. For the most part, "Boom" lazily follows Adam Sandler's proven recipe for box-office success. Because of James, "Boom" isn't a total bust. But what's missing from this color-by-numbers screenplay is the bizarre touch of eccentric humor Sandler often lets creep into his comedies. By comparison, the generic "Boom" comes off as bland. SEAN O'CONNELL

HOTEL TRANSYLVANIA (PG, 92 minutes) As Count Dracula, Adam Sandler turns in a blandly unobjectionable—if toothless—performance. As Jonathan, a young American backpacker who accidentally wanders into Dracula's castle—set up as a hotel for monsters seeking refuge from human persecution—Andy Samberg does his best to animate his innocuous persona. Selena Gomez brings a bit more personality to the role of Dracula's daughter, Mavis, a "teenager" celebrating her 118th birthday while chafing at her father's overprotectiveness. Of course, she and Jonathan fall in love, leading to—well, not terribly much. It's something of a shame. "Hotel Transylvania" is entertaining enough for the trick-or-treat crowd, but a bit more bite wouldn't kill it. M.O.

LOOPER (R, 118 minutes) Joseph Gordon-Levitt plays Joe, a laconic young man living in Kansas City in 2044, where as the film opens he is in a wheat field consulting his pocket watch. Another man suddenly appears and—blam!—Joe blows him away. He explains in a voice-over that his victim has come from the 2070s, when the mob uses time-traveling assassins like Joe—called loopers—to dispose of bodies that technically don't exist. The mob boss of the future then decides to "close the loop" and sends the older version of the hit man back to be killed. That's precisely what happens to Joe, who when he confronts his older self—played by Bruce Willis—doesn't quite carry out the orders as planned. The ethics of saving the future by changing the past might be a time-worn theoretical question. But "Looper" brings it to life with startling inventiveness and visual pizzazz. A.H.

PARANORMAL ACTIVITY 4 (R, 88 minutes) The newest film in the found-footage horror series picks up in story terms where the second film left off. A brief recap of that film's finale — in which the possessed Katie disappeared with her infant nephew, Hunter — opens the proceedings before moving forward five years to introduce a family living in a Nevada suburb. After a creepy neighbor boy named Robbie comes to stay with them for a few days, weird things begin to happen around the house. When Katie suddenly appears, it implies that Robbie is, in fact, Hunter. "Paranormal Activity 4" is in many ways one big setup, building to a single, inevitable what's-behind-you jump scare and then a rollicking finale. (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

PITCH PERFECT (PG-13, 112 minutes) Kay Cannon's script about the world of competitive collegiate a cappella combines the obvious elements of "Glee" with the plot and snark of the 2000 competitive-cheerleading comedy "Bring It On." Running through it all is the surreal DNA of "30 Rock," coupled with that show's satirical plausibility. For the most part, it works brilliantly. That's largely because of the music, which the movie approaches with an attitude halfway between awe and skepticism. Anna Kendrick also helps. In the lead role of Beca — an alterna-chick who only reluctantly joins her school's all-female singing group, the Bellas — Kendrick brings a healthy amount of amused detachment. M-2 amount of amused detachment. M.D. SEVEN PSYCHOPATHS (R, 105 minutes) Overkill could well be the one exact word for "Seven Psychopaths," in which a screenwriter named Marty (Colin Farrell) starts writing a movie called "Seven Psychopaths." While Marty tries to dream up homicidal maniacs, his friend Billy (Sam Rockwell) and his partner in crime, Hans (Christopher Walken), embark on their daily scam, kidnapping dogs and pocketing the reward money. When Billy steals a shih tzu, though, he runs afoul of its devoted owner, a pathological crime boss named Charlie (Woody Harrelson). The film traffics in the larky dark humor of the Coen brothers and the heedless, whiz-bang movie-worship of Quentin Tarantino. A-H-

SINISTER (R, 110 minutes) Played by Ethan Hawke, Ellison Oswalt is a true-crime writer who, in an effort to research his next book, moves with his unwitting wife and two young children into a house where the last occupants were hung from a tree in the backyard. Before he has fully unpacked, Ellison discovers a box in the attic containing a movie projector and a stack of Super 8 films with explicit footage of that most recent massacre, along with several other similarly grisly murders. After watching a few minutes of this charming snuff-film library, the first thing Ellison realizes is that someone must have left the movies specifically for him. He does what any sane, responsible father would do: consult a specialist in the occult. M.O.

3 TAKEN 2 (PG-13, 91 minutes)
As "Taken" protagonist Bryan Mills, Liam Neeson infused an otherwise by-the-numbers procedural with an ineffable, highly appealing blend of Celtic soul and heft. "Taken 2," however, is a sequel every bit as clumsy, ham-handed, outlandish and laughable as the original was sleek, tough and efficient. When Bryan travels to Istanbul on business, circumstances conspire to bring his daughter and ex-wife there in order to surprise him; soon, all three are caught up in a nasty web of kidnapping, sadistic torture and revenge spun by the very Albanian bad guys Bryan recently vanquished on behalf of his daughter. From its first set piece, "Taken 2" possesses the perfunctory mark-hitting of a movie more invested in going through the motions than raising its own bar. A.H.

Revisiting Old Haunts

NBC dusts off a failed 'Munsters' remake as a Halloween special

Premieres

FRI 8:00 Remakes of old shows rarely work. For every "Hawaii Five-0" or "Upstairs Downstairs" that sticks around, there are far more "Charlie's Angels" and "Love Boat" reboots that vanish because they fail to fire the nostalgia of the show's old fans or grab the attention of those too young to remember the original.

A year ago, NBC looked at "Mockingbird Lane" as a reinvention of "The Munsters." After commissioning a pilot episode, the network decided not to give it a green light.

But on Friday, the network will air the one-hour test-drive as a Halloween special. According to published reports, the pilot, starring Jerry O'Connell and Portia de Rossi in the Herman and Lily roles and Eddie Izzard as Grandpa, cost as much as $10 million. So you can understand why NBC wants to get its money's worth.

Look for a walk-on from Butch Patrick, who played Eddie Munster in the original. Mason Cook ("Spy Kids") plays the role of the adolescent werewolf in this version.

If enough people tune in to see the recycled horror comedy spoof, perhaps NBC will reconsider and "Mockingbird" will appear weekly. Or we'll see why the network passed on it in the first place.

"Mockingbird" will lead into a Halloween-themed episode of "Grimm" at 9 p.m., in which a series of child abductions leads Nick to find a resemblance between the crimes and the folktale of La Llorona — the weeping woman.

Best Bets

FRI 10:30

Health Inspectors (FOOD) In each episode of this new series, Ben Vaughn outlines what substandard restaurants must do to maintain proper kitchen safety and cleanliness before the health inspectors come in for review.

SUN 8:00

Once Upon a Time (ABC) As Regina struggles to stop using her magic, she has visions of what she thinks is a ghost from her past. Emma and Mary Margaret (Ginnifer Goodwin, left) encounter a survivor of an ogre massacre, but Emma suspects he's not telling them the truth.

SUN 9:00

Masterpiece Classic (PBS) In "Upstairs Downstairs, Series II: All the Things You Are," Harry's desire to impress Beryl leads him and Johnny into the world of boxing. Upstairs, Sir Hallam makes a decision that will change his life forever.

SUN 9:00

Dexter (SH) While investigating Louis' murder, Dexter (Michael C. Hall, right) tries to stay one step ahead of Isaak, who's after both him and Debra. Wayne Randall's former accomplice, Hannah McKay, sheds new light on his killing spree, but she's hiding something. (TRIBUNE MEDIA)

Comedy

Social Experiment

Comedian D.L. Hughley, above, travels the country to examine the state of the black man in America with "The Endangered List" (Sat., 11 p.m., Com). He collects evidence from South Central Los Angeles gangs, black farmers in Tennessee and white supremacists in Michigan to present his case to politicians that black men should be an endangered species. "Pop-ups are over!
Or so you might think upon learning that Washington's field of temporary pop-up shops will soon include a company that sells bandages and pain pills."

— Will Sommer at WASHINGTONCITYPAPER.COM/BLOGS/CITYDESK finds it a bit lame that pharmaceutical supply companies are now throwing random pop-up shop events.

"I mean, it's a small shark, sure, kind of more like a fish, but fish are sharks, too, right? No, I have that backward. Sharks are fish. Are sharks mammals? No, that's whales. Mammals will be next. Sure, they'll TELL YOU it was just picked up by a bird or something, but actually: the Illuminati."

— Kevin Lincoln at BUZZFEED.COM is stunned that a bloodied, but alive, leopard shark fell from the sky Monday on to a golf course at San Juan Hills Golf Club in California.

"You're going to have to find someone else to 'take your mama out' for the foreseeable future."

— Jeff Giles at DIFFUSER.FM reacts to the announcement that Scissor Sisters are splitting up "after 11 years, four albums, two EPs and two DVDs."

"The first 25 [words] are about how Maryland is gonna let people marry whomever they want, because Freedom, and the last 71 words are about how churches don't have to change anything or marry any icky gays or even talk to them, also because Freedom."

— Rich Abdill at WONKETTE.COM mocks the wording of Maryland's Question 6, a ballot measure that would give gays the right to legally marry in the state.

"Any time one of the country's most popular sports writers says a D.C. GM's personnel decision was 'the equivalent of pulling your pants down at work and exposing yourself to a female employee,' well, I can hardly ignore that, right?"

— Dan Steinberg at WASHINGTONPOST.COM/BLOGS/DC-SPORTS-BOG thinks ESPN's Bill Simmons might have gone overboard in criticizing the Washington Wizards recently.

Horoscope

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Efficiency may be an issue today, but if you address it head-on you should be able to make up for any loss suffered early in the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You can be competitive, but you may have to dig deep to ensure that you have the mental and physical resources required.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Things are likely to slow down a bit simply because there are rules and regulations to deal with. You're impatient with red tape!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Apply instinctive responses to what goes on today and you'll understand things better and be able to perform at a higher level.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You and a teammate may disagree about what is best to do to address a breakdown in communication. This in itself is symptomatic!

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may find yourself pulled in two or more directions at once today as others make their needs and desires known.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may want to assume a more reserved stance today in order to avoid being misunderstood in some way.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have a chance to shine, but take care that you don't overextend yourself early on. Save something for late in the day!

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't pretend you know things that you don't, or you'll encounter a kind of danger that you are not equipped to address.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can call the shots for a while, but if you begin to falter, there is someone willing and able to step up and take over—if necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You don't want to do anything halfway today—nor can you afford to leave things for later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll be able to control your own situation more successfully than you have in the recent past.

Samurai Sudoku

DIFFICULTY

Today in History

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.

NEW AVENUES

It Was This or Run for Congress, and She Hates Pant Suits

Reese Witherspoon may be expanding her career to include music. Us Weekly reported anonymous sources who say that the actress, who did her own singing while playing June Carter Cash in the 2005 film "Walk the Line," is in talks with Michael Bublé to record a duet. Witherspoon recently gave birth to her third child, Tennessee James, her first with husband Jim Toth. (EXPRESS)

BIG STEPS

Is It Love? You Try Finding An Apartment in Brooklyn

Michelle Williams and Jason Segel, who have been dating all year, have moved in together, reports People magazine. Segel has taken up residence in the Brooklyn apartment Williams rents with her 7-year-old daughter (with the late Heath Ledger), Matilda, People says. Segel currently commutes between New York and Los Angeles for work. (EXPRESS)

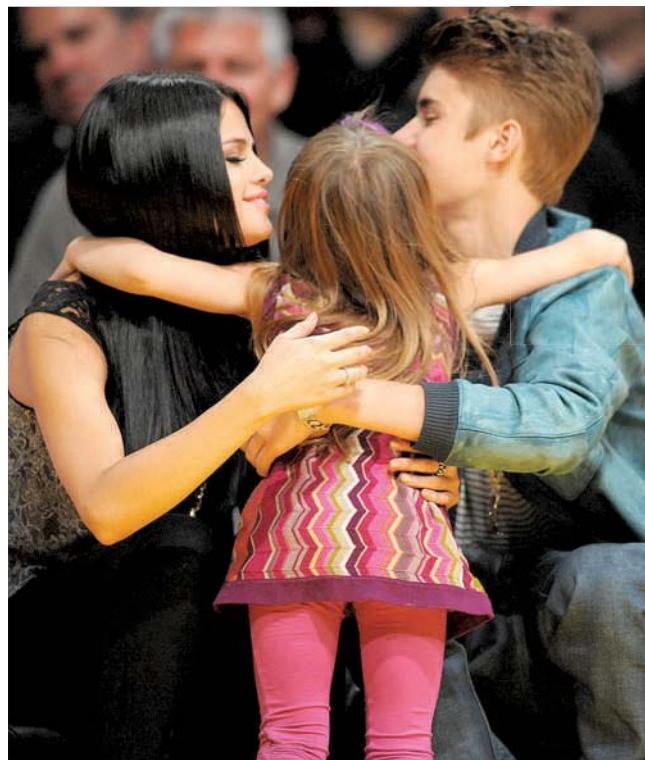

Little does Williams know, Segel is writing Taylor Swift-like songs about her.

Victims

Well, His Thumbs Are Fine, at Least

Sean "Diddy" Combs was in a car accident in Beverly Hills, according to E! News. His Cadillac Escalade collided with another vehicle Wednesday afternoon, but nobody was reported taken to the hospital. Combs tweeted about the accident Thursday morning: "Woah... that was a close one!" (EXPRESS)

Gomez is also secretly disgusted by this small child's hug.

SPLITSVILLE

Now That New Album Is Guaranteed to Go Platinum

Taylor Swift and her 18-year-old boyfriend, Conor Kennedy, have broken up, according to Us Weekly. An anonymous source attributes the breakup to distance rather than desire, saying the two have been split up for "a while" and haven't seen each other for more than a month. Swift has been busy promoting her new album. (EXPRESS)

BAD ROMANCE

Ah, Young Fake Love

The relationship between Justin Bieber and Selena Gomez is more practical than emotional, according to Radar Online. An anonymous source says that while Bieber has true feelings for his girlfriend, Gomez is dating him only because he's "good for her brand" and that the relationship isn't a "fairy-tale romance." The source also says that Gomez's team of handlers is pushing her to stay with Bieber in order to further her career. Radar Online recently reported that the couple is on the rocks. (EXPRESS)
